

The Center for Environmental Democracy-Florozon is a non-governmental, non-profit, and independent organization that promotes and protects citizens' access rights, environmental democracy, human health issues, poverty reduction, and higher quality of life. CED Florozon also works in other areas that are connected to the environment, including agriculture and rural development.

Volunteering Opportunities: CED Florozon seeks a volunteer to update the website and be involved in the promotion of activities and events on social media, i.e. Facebook, Twitter etc. This is a great opportunity for a young person to contribute towards the defense of human rights with regards to environmental justice, environmental democracy, and environmental protection.
